

A DEPUTATION OF ENGLISHMEN

To Appear Before Finance Committee of Senate.

BRITISH OPPOSING STEEL SCHEDULES

Seeking To Influence Pending Tariff Measure.

Action on Tariff Bill and the Bill To Fund Foreign Debts Will Not Be Taken Till After Armament Conference.

Washington, Aug. 30.—The 40 members of a deputation of English business men before the Senate Finance Committee today, to influence the pending tariff bill, is expected to be the largest group of foreign business men to appear before the committee since the war.

Some of the deputation are of the opinion that the tariff question is one that may be decided finally by the tariff commission, but they are of the opinion that the tariff commission will not be able to decide the question of the tariff until after the armament conference.

These deputation have known for some time that the administration intended that both the tariff bill and the foreign-debt-funding bill should be enacted finally by Congress.

The liquidation of the $1,000,000,000 foreign indebtedness to the United States and the construction of a tariff wall against foreign products are most questions which are not unlikely to be projected into the melting pot of international questions, once the conference gets under way, these deputation believe.

The admission of an English deputation to a hearing of the Senate Finance Committee on the tariff is described by the state department as "unofficial" and as having no connection with the British government itself, except that the British ambassador, Sir Auckland Geddes, personally arranged it.

Seeking Settlement.

Mexico City, Aug. 30.—"The American oil interests will do everything possible to facilitate a settlement of the Mexican petroleum troubles," said E. L. Doherty, president of the Mexican Petroleum Company, today. "We wish a speedy settlement of the controversy and we expect a settlement to result from our conference." Following the meeting of the American oil men with Secretary of the Treasury de la Huerta, Monday afternoon, a conference was scheduled for this evening with President Obregon.

Big Bill Seized.

Lexington Ky., Aug. 30.—A sixty-gallon still, the most modern ever taken in the state, was seized by Deputy United States Marshal J. W. Davis, Sheriff William Anderson and John Greenblatt, in Greenup county, near Russell, Kentucky, today. The still was operated by a gasoline engine and the amount of liquor required to operate it was declared negligible. One man who gave his name as Frank England, was arrested and 200 gallons of moonshine liquor and 200 gallons of still beer were destroyed.

MRS. DE VALERA OPENS IRISH BAZAAR

Mrs. Eamon de Valera.

President Eamon de Valera, wife of the Irish leader, opened the Garden of Ireland bazaar, near the De Valera home, at Belmullet, county Wick, today. The opening ceremony was to have been performed by Mr. de Valera, but it was announced that he was called away on urgent business.

PEACE TREATY WITH GERMANY

Will Reach Senate for Ratification September 20

MAY BE PRESENTED BY CHIEF EXECUTIVE

Official Report of Signing of the Treaty with Hungary Not Yet Received.

Washington, Aug. 30.—The treaty of peace with Germany will be submitted to the Senate immediately upon the ratification of that treaty, September 20, it was announced at the White House today afternoon. The president has not yet decided whether a message will accompany the treaty or whether it will be laid before the Senate by the chief executive in person.

Official Report.

Washington, Aug. 30.—The state department has not yet received official reports of the signing of a treaty of peace between the United States and Hungary. It was announced today. It was stated that the treaty is ready for signature and that it may have been signed by United States Commissioner Grant Smith, although no notification has yet reached here.

An Order Issued.

Washington, Aug. 30.—President Harding has given orders that all tickets which were sold by the United States Mail Steamship company of peace between the United States and which cannot be used now because of the bankruptcy of the shipping concern, shall be made good by the United States. It was announced at the White House this afternoon.

Hearty Responses.

Washington, Aug. 30.—Responses to the administration's call for assistance in dealing with the unemployment problem have been "very gratifying," it was announced at the White House today.

The first part of the program of the administration will be a meeting here between employers and labor leaders during which a program will be mapped out. The plan involves practical study of measures to meet the situation and efforts will be made, it was stated, to compile accurate figures on unemployment.

A Conference.

Washington, Aug. 30.—Congress will be urged to authorize a binational conference of the international powers in an effort to stabilize exchange, when it reconvenes late in September, Congressman McFadden, of Pennsylvania announced today. McFadden has already introduced a resolution requesting the president to invite Great Britain and France to join with the United States in a financial conference and he stated today that he would attempt to secure passage of this resolution shortly after the conclusion of the recess. The conference, to convene in Washington not later than three months following its call, is to conduct a joint investigation of the problem of exchange. The United States representatives are to report the results of their investigation and recommendations to Congress.

No Trade Barrier.

Washington, Aug. 30.—A plan that no trade barrier be permitted to "disturb or disrupt the harmony existing up to this time," between American and English business interests, was made before the Senate Finance Committee today, by Arthur H. Hays Sulzberger, head of a delegation of English business men representing the Shell-Hess chamber of commerce. "Let us live, let us work and let us pay you what we owe you," Sulzberger said in declaring that the duties fixed on "high speed steel" in the Fordney tariff bill would wipe out English makers of cutlery and tools who he added, are entirely dependent upon the American market.

ATHERTON CASE OPENED TODAY

Newark Mayor Appears Before Governor Davis.

DENIES PROTECTING NEWARK GAMBLERS

Mayor Declares Men Complaining Against Him Are Men He Fines for Law Violations.

Columbus, Aug. 30.—Governor Davis, today, started his hearing relative to charges filed with the governor against Mayor H. S. Atherton, Newark, by officials of the Law Enforcement League of that city, alleging illegal protection of gamblers and laxity of law enforcement.

Mayor Atherton was the first witness called. He entered a general denial of all the accusations made against him. He also testified that the affidavits accompanying the charges were signed by Newark citizens whom the mayor had fined because of violations of law.

Police Chief James S. Sheridan, Newark, followed Mayor Atherton on the stand. Chief Sheridan said the mayor never indicated that he wanted certain gamblers protected. He said that he had no money for protection purposes from law violators, ever passed through his hands, the chief testified.

Mayor Atherton not only expected the chief to see to it that there was proper enforcement of law, but he believed that the chief was seeing to it that such was the case, according to Chief Sheridan's testimony.

The chief, although declaring that he personally led all raids upon gambling places and places where illicit liquors were dispensed, admitted that, to his knowledge, he had never discussed the question of law enforcement with Mayor Atherton.

Explanation was made by the chief that it had been his policy to endeavor to prevent gambling places from operating without making arrests, if possible. He said he did this by notifying gamblers that if they did not stop their illegal activities, he would arrest them. He expressed belief that his policy was an effective one.

Although declaring there had been no arrests of gamblers between April 1920, and July, last, Chief Sheridan denied that either Mayor Atherton or himself had winked at gambling. He said five raids were made during the past year.

AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR DRIVE NEAR

Movement To Boost Membership To 5,000,000.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 30.—Labor day will mark the inauguration of a drive to boost the membership of the American Federation of Labor to 5,000,000. It was announced today by the executive council of that organization, in session here. President Samuel Gompers will open the drive with an important address at Baltimore.

The membership boom is rendered necessary, it was explained, by the decrease during the past year from 4,073,740 to 3,905,528, owing to the widespread unemployment. In a preliminary message given out here today, President Gompers declared:

"The time has come for labor to assume the aggressive. We have laid the line. Our positions are intact. It is the hour for a great forward movement. Set Labor day as the day upon which we cease holding the line and begin to move forward in a great relentless wave."

TWENTY MILES BEYOND KNOWN WAGON TRAIL

Rev. M. L. Buckley Home from Fishing Trip.

Rev. M. L. Buckley returned last evening from a fifteen-day trip to Port Arthur, Ontario, Canada. This is the second time that Rev. Mr.
Buckley has visited the Thunder
Bay district which abounds in minerals of all kinds, wild animals, lake and streams filled with fishes.
He took the boat at Detroit through the Detroit river to Lake Huron.
Sault Ste. Marie across Lake Superior to Port Arthur. He spent in all ten days fishing and was six days at Lake Loon, thirty miles in the wilderness east of Port Arthur, twenty miles beyond a wagon trail.
From there he joined a fishing party of six on foot that followed a trail over hills thirteen miles through the forest to Cleg Lake.
The trail was just wide enough for

"KER-CHOO!" AND ALSO "A-HEMI!" IN THIS CITY

Where "Summer Colds" Seem To Be the Rage.
"Ker-choo!" Also, "A-HeMI!" and sounds of barking and whooping and much sniffing. Physicians are being kept active prescribing for a veritable epidemic in Marion of what for a better term is called "summer colds." The symptoms are somewhat similar to those of hay fever, but also have variations. The patient's lungs, throat and head generally are affected and he sometimes sneezes as though he had hay fever. The symptoms are accompanied by lacrimation.

On the other hand the average victim of hay fever this year is not suffering with the complaint as much as usual, so far, the doctors say. The fever seems to be attacking in higher form.

The medicines usually prescribed for colds are being given to those suffering with the "summer colds" and it is believed the epidemic soon will pass.

day, that rather than betray the principles for which he and his compatriots had struggled he would go alone, if need be, to the Allegheny mountains and there die a guerilla chieftain fighting as a champion of freedom." Mr. Golden declared "Ireland today, with 4,000,000 of people, confronting the world's mightiest empire, takes her stand on the solid rock of principle and enunciates to the world that there are still people in the world who do not hesitate to die where a great principle is involved."

Ridiculous Idea.

Mr. Golden ridiculed the idea that recognition of the Irish republic by the United States government would lead to war and said that the peoples of Ireland have suffered from war as no people ever did and they wanted a cessation, not a continuation of it. Recognition without intervention has always been the policy of the United States government towards new republics wherever established. This policy when applied heretofore has not meant war, not would it mean war now. The speaker stated that it was the duty of America, in accordance with all her traditions and in order that she might not break faith with her dead, who died for the rights of small nations, to accord recognition to the only legal government in Ireland today—the government of the Irish republic, which was founded on the primary principles of Americanism, namely, a government of the people, for the people and by the people.

In speaking of the atrocities committed in Ireland by the English Mr. Golden referred to the death of Kevin Barry and declared that his death stirred Ireland to greater depths than did the death of Terrence MacSwiney. "Ireland today is a nation of Terrence MacSwineys," he said, "and she is fighting a fight which will determine whether might is right."

PETER GOLDEN STIRS IRISH HEARTS HERE.

Eloquent Irishman Speaks in Behalf of Old Erin.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH IS WELL-FILLED LAST NIGHT

Speaker Declares England Now Realizes Subjugation of the Irish Is Impossible.

"We Irish are sick of war and are sick of fighting, for we have had it forced on us for centuries and though we are sick of the tragedy of war we are going to continue that war until we are a free nation," declared Peter Golden, of Chicago, representative of the American Association for Recognition of the Irish Republic in an address Monday evening at St. Mary's church.

The story of Ireland's cause and condition today was most ably and eloquently presented by Mr. Golden, who has gathered wreaths in both hands wherever he has defended Ireland throughout the country.

PETER GOLDEN

Mr. Golden has addressed large audiences in most of the large cities of the country and has won many champions to the cause by his straightforward and convincing presentation of conditions in the island today. He stirred his fair-sized audience at St. Mary's Monday evening. The speaker was introduced by Rev. Joseph M. Denning, pastor of St. Mary's church.

Declared by England.

"England has so belabored and so misrepresented the Irish question that many people think it is something very involved and something very difficult to be understood, yet there is no simpler question in the world. What are the people of Ireland fighting for? They are fighting for liberty. They are fighting for the right to live their own lives in their own country the way that they wish, and not the way that England wants them to," said Mr. Golden.

The speaker took up the various arguments put forward by England against recognizing the independence of Ireland and showed how utterly untenable they all were. He ridiculed England's claim that Ireland was small and poor by asking his audience if they thought England would hold on for 750 years to an Ireland of that kind. He then cited the facts that 110,000,000 Americans pay the president of the United States a salary of $75,000 a year—while 4,000,000 people in Ireland are compelled to pay the lord lieutenant, who must be an Englishman, and who until the present incumbent had to be a Protestant, who goes to Ireland to govern the Irish people not the way they desire but the way that England dictates—$135,000 a year, and $200,000 a year for the upkeep of his household. Then there is the chief secretary who gets $100,000 a year; an under secretary, $75,000 a year; and hordes of other office holders who receive proportionate salaries. England takes out of Ireland approximately $150,000,000 a year for governing the Irish people against their will. Ireland could be run under a government of its own for $75,000,000 a year. England pockets the rest of the money and parades Ireland to the world as being poor.

Germany's Plea.

"Regarding England's contention that she must hold Ireland in subjection to insure her continued domination of the world, the speaker stated that Germany put forth the same plea towards Belgium when Germany thought she would win the war. England denounced such a doctrine when promulgated by Germany as being an infamous one.

"Why is it not also infamous when promulgated by England?" asked Mr. Golden. "The fact that England has been in Ireland against the wishes of the Irish people for 700 years does not justify her being there any more than 700 years' occupancy of the soil of Belgium against the wishes of the Belgians would justify Germany's right to rule over Belgium, or Germany's right to rule over England or France if she had conquered either of those countries." Time does not justify wrongdoings or injustices.

Mr. Golden stated the principal argument used against Ireland was that it was simply a fight for Catholic domination. Denying this, he showed that for over 200 years after England invaded Ireland, England herself was Catholic, that she turned Ireland into a shambles then as ruthlessly as she did when she became Protestant. He asked: "How did it happen if the Irish question were a Catholic question that England used exactly the same kind of a rope to hang the Protestant who wanted to see Ireland free as she did the Catholic who wanted to see Ireland free?"

The speaker cited the names of the leaders of the Irish revolutionary and constitutional movement for the last 150 years, all of whom, he said, with the exception of one or two, were Protestants.

"Ireland did not ask them what their religious belief was in following them to liberty," said the speaker. "The Catholics of England were the bitterest enemies that Irish liberty had. Surely an anomalous situation if Ireland's fight were a Catholic fight."

Quaker Call Old Leader.

Mr. Golden quoted the greatest Catholic leader Ireland had, a canonizing Ireland's policy when he said: "We take our religion from Rome but we take our politics from Ireland." The speaker stated that he was voicing the sentiment of the Ireland that is living and the Ireland that is dead when he declared that those battling for Ireland's freedom would rather see Ireland sunk under the sea rather than see her merely rid of an English government if by that were meant the setting up of an Irish government under which every man and woman in Ireland did not have a perfect right to worship God as each saw fit.

Ireland's Present Generation.

"Coming to the present condition in Ireland the speaker stated that in December, 1918, the people of Ireland held an election, in accordance with law, and despite all the power that England could bring to bear to nullify the effects of that election the result was the eighty-two per cent. of the people voted for an Irish republic. In an election held since then, the speaker stated, for the rural and district county councils, practically ninety-one per cent. of the people voted for an Irish republic.

"They then set out, despite all the obstacles put in their way, to enable that government to function, and in less than one year, according to the testimony of Bonner Law, Lloyd George and Sir Edward Carson, they broke down English government in four-fifths of Ireland and made the law of the Irish republic the recognized and acknowledged law of the land," said Mr. Golden. "Seeing this, England then announced through Sir Hamar Greenwood, the chief secretary for Ireland, that her policy towards Ireland would be 'To take Ireland from end to end.'"

The speaker then described the alleged methods employed by England for the pursuance of this policy. Over 80,000 midnight raids have been carried out in Ireland in two years and 145 towns and villages burned and shot up, he said. He quoted former Premier Asquith as saying that England had never fallen so low in the moral scale of the nations as at the present time because of her treatment of Ireland. He cited the report of the British labor party to the effect that things were done in Ireland in the name of England which made England's name stench in the nostrils of humanity, and the public apology in the English press, written by Henry W. Nevinnson, to the shades of the sultan and the czar, for the things he wrote against them because of the Armenian atrocities and the massacres of the Jews—his own government, Nevinnson admitting, having done things in Ireland in the last two years such as no government ever did anywhere in the civilized world.

Subjugation Impossible.

"England now realizes that the subjugation of the Irish people is as impossible today as it has always been, so she seeks to effect a compromise and get Ireland out of the way in order that she may be free to face the tremendous international complications which everywhere confront her. She offers Ireland, not what the people of Ireland have fought for and want, but what England wishes to give them. She seeks to give the impression that she is offering Ireland a dominion form of government.

"Apart from the fact that Ireland has not suffered for 700 years for any dominion form of government, but for the recognition of her nationhood, the speaker stated that England was not offering a dominion form of government to Ireland or anything approaching it. He said:

"England cuts Ireland in two to perpetuate the animosity she has fostered and kept alive on the old Roman idea of divide and conquer, and having given a few counties in the north a parliament which they did not want she offers the rest of Ireland certain powers which would serve that part of Ireland still under the domination of England, would leave all Ireland disunited, and then England calls a full dominion government."

The speaker declared that Ireland today was in the same position as America 150 years ago. "England, broken by the Covenants, offered them everything but the thing they wanted—which was liberty. Refusing to the England of that day, George Washington said, so do I refuse today to the England of this day."

Mr. Golden stated the principal argument used against Ireland was that it was simply a fight for Catholic domination. Denying this, he showed that for over 200 years after England invaded Ireland, England herself was Catholic, that she turned Ireland into a shambles then as ruthlessly as she did when she became Protestant. "Ireland did not ask them what their religious belief was in following them to liberty," said the speaker. "The Catholics of England were the bitterest enemies that Irish liberty had. Surely an anomalous situation if Ireland's fight were a Catholic fight."

Quaker Call Old Leader.

Mr. Golden quoted the greatest Catholic leader Ireland had, a canonizing Ireland's policy when he said: "We take our religion from Rome but we take our politics from Ireland." The speaker stated that he was voicing the sentiment of the Ireland that is living and the Ireland that is dead when he declared that those battling for Ireland's freedom would rather see Ireland sunk under the sea rather than see her merely rid of an English government if by that were meant the setting up of an Irish government under which every man and woman in Ireland did not have a perfect right to worship God as each saw fit.

Ireland's Present Generation.

"Coming to the present condition in Ireland the speaker stated that in December, 1918, the people of Ireland held an election, in accordance with law, and despite all the power that England could bring to bear to nullify the effects of that election the result was the eighty-two per cent. of the people voted for an Irish republic. In an election held since then, the speaker stated, for the rural and district county councils, practically ninety-one per cent. of the people voted for an Irish republic.

"They then set out, despite all the obstacles put in their way, to enable that government to function, and in less than one year, according to the testimony of Bonner Law, Lloyd George and Sir Edward Carson, they broke down English government in four-fifths of Ireland and made the law of the Irish republic the recognized and acknowledged law of the land," said Mr. Golden. "Seeing this, England then announced through Sir Hamar Greenwood, the chief secretary for Ireland, that her policy towards Ireland would be 'To take Ireland from end to end.'"

The speaker then described the alleged methods employed by England for the pursuance of this policy. Over 80,000 midnight raids have been carried out in Ireland in two years and 145 towns and villages burned and shot up, he said. He quoted former Premier Asquith as saying that England had never fallen so low in the moral scale of the nations as at the present time because of her treatment of Ireland. He cited the report of the British labor party to the effect that things were done in Ireland in the name of England which made England's name stench in the nostrils of humanity, and the public apology in the English press, written by Henry W. Nevinnson, to the shades of the sultan and the czar, for the things he wrote against them because of the Armenian atrocities and the massacres of the Jews—his own government, Nevinnson admitting, having done things in Ireland in the last two years such as no government ever did anywhere in the civilized world.

Subjugation Impossible.

"England now realizes that the subjugation of the Irish people is as impossible today as it has always been, so she seeks to effect a compromise and get Ireland out of the way in order that she may be free to face the tremendous international complications which everywhere confront her. She offers Ireland, not what the people of Ireland have fought for and want, but what England wishes to give them. She seeks to give the impression that she is offering Ireland a dominion form of government.

"Apart from the fact that Ireland has not suffered for 700 years for any dominion form of government, but for the recognition of her nationhood, the speaker stated that England was not offering a dominion form of government to Ireland or anything approaching it. He said:

"England cuts Ireland in two to perpetuate the animosity she has fostered and kept alive on the old Roman idea of divide and conquer, and having given a few counties in the north a parliament which they did not want she offers the rest of Ireland certain powers which would serve that part of Ireland still under the domination of England, would leave all Ireland disunited, and then England calls a full dominion government."

Camels are made for Men who Think for Themselves

Such folks know real quality—and DEMAND it. They prefer Camels because Camels give them the smoothest, mellowest smoke they can buy—because they love the mild, rich flavor of choicest tobaccos, perfectly blended—and because Camels leave NO CIGARETTE AFTERTASTE.

Like every man who does his own thinking, you want fine tobacco in your cigarettes. You'll find it in Camels.

And, mind you, no flashy package just for show. No extra wrappers! No costly frills! These things don't improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons.

But QUALITY! Listen! That's CAMELS!

GARIS' BEDTIME STORIES*UNCLE WIGGLY'S SHOWER BATH

(BY HOWARD E. GARIS)
(Copyright 1921, by the Marion Newspaper Syndicate.)

One day, when Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, the muskrat lady housekeeper, sat on the stoop of the hollow stumpy bungalow, she saw Uncle Wiggly and Grandfather Goosey Gander coming down the path together.

"They're wonderful," Uncle Wiggly said. "Simply wonderful!" said Grandpa Goosey. "You ought to get one for yourself."

"I think I'll make one," said the rabbit gentleman, as he twinkled his pink nose to say "good-by!"

"What is it you're going to make?" Nurse Jane wanted to know, as Uncle Wiggly hopped up the steps, while Grandpa Goosey flustered his way back to his home pen.

"Is supper ready?" asked the rabbit gentleman, shifting-like to see if he could smell whether there was good ing to be fried carrots or broiled marmalade.

"I'll get your supper right away," Nurse Jane answered. "But what is it you and Grandpa Goosey were talking about? What are you going to make?"

"Oh, nothing very much," replied Uncle Wiggly, as he gave a little grasshopper a slide on his shiny silk hat.

"Pooh! It's a secret!" thought Nurse Jane when she saw that Uncle Wiggly, just to tease her, wasn't going to answer. "It's a secret! But I'll find out what it is just the same!"

She didn't ask the bunny rabbit any more about it, but set the table for supper, and that night Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy and Mr. Longears went to the moving pictures at the Mosley Log theater.

The next day, in a wooded back of Uncle Wiggly's hollow stumpy bungalow, Nurse Jane heard a great noise of hammering, pounding, sawing and tapping on tin.

"That old rabbit gentleman is up to some trick," thought Nurse Jane. "When he goes I'll slip in that shed and see what his secret is that Grandpa Goosey told him to make!"

The hammering, pounding, and sawing kept up nearly all day. Uncle Wiggly only coming out for his lunch. Toward afternoon he came out again and carried three pails of water into the shed.

"Are you going swimming?" asked Nurse Jane, who just had to say something.

"Sort of," answered Mr. Longears. "After a while, that is! Don't bother with anything in this shed, Nurse Jane," he added, as he closed the door and went out.

"All right," the muskrat lady answered, but she didn't say she would not go in. Nurse Jane was very cute that way.

But, no sooner had Uncle Wiggly hopped down the road to go get Grandpa Goosey Gander, than the muskrat lady laid aside her sewing and went to the wooded shed. First she looked in through the keyhole. All she saw was a wooden box on the floor.

"Maybe he's making a trap to catch the Fox or Wolf," thought Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy.

The more she thought of this the more she wanted to see what it was Uncle Wiggly had made. So, looking around to make sure the busy rabbit gentleman couldn't see her, into the shed she went, for the door was not locked.

All Nurse Jane saw was a big sprinkling can hanging high up on the side wall of the shed. And from the sprinkling can there dangled a short piece of clothesline rope.

"I wonder what would happen if I pulled that rope?" thought Nurse Jane. "I'll do it." To pull the rope she had to step in the box on the floor. The box had some holes in the bottom like a coffee strainer, only not so many. And when Nurse Jane was in the box and took the rope in her paw she was right under the sprinkling can.

"Well, here goes!" said the muskrat lady. She gave a hard pull, and the next moment she thought she was in the middle of a heavy rain storm! For water poured down all over her, splashing her from head to tail.

"Oh, my goodness! What's this!" cried Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "It didn't look like a rain storm when I came in. What in the world is this?"

"It's my new shower bath!" laughed Uncle Wiggly, hopping along just then. "Grandpa Goosey made one and told me how wonderful they were, so I made a shower bath from an old sprinkling can. I filled it with water, hung it high up on the wall and fastened a rope to it. When you pull the rope you tip up the can and the water falls out as you stand in the box beneath."

"Yes, the water falls out all right—I see that!" said Nurse Jane as she stepped out of the box, soaking wet. "I won't try to find out any more of your secrets, Uncle Wiggly!"

"Oh, this was fun!" laughed the bunny. "Put on your bathing suit and I'll put on mine and we'll get under the shower again."

So they did and had lots of fun, and there were ice cream carrots for supper that night.
